In addition to the detailed reproduction of the skull structures, this first-class model of a human skull focuses specifically on teeth and jaws and is therefore the perfect teaching and demonstration tool for the field of dentistry and oral surgery.

The front half of the upper and lower jaw can be removed to reveal teeth with roots, unilateral nerves and blood vessels as well as the maxillary sinuses. The skull is not only suitable as a perfect aid for learning anatomy, but also as an explanatory aid for oral surgery and implantology.
