Parameters

This realistic training phantom is ideal for practicing the procedure and techniques involved in endotracheal intubation.

- The tongue is flexible.
- The teeth are made of hard plastic, so a tooth spreader can also be used.
- Epiglottis and soft palate are present.
- The dog's head is mounted on a base.
- The base is designed in such a way that you can intubate in upright as well as in a lying (supine) position.
- The stand also offers a success check if the intubation is carried out correctly.

A clamp included in the scope of delivery offers a firm stand.
